REAL-LIFE ENVIRONMENT SUPERHERO

Six-year-old climate activist Licypriya wanted to make a difference in her native country of India, so she began drawing posters and using her voice at climate protests.

At 8 years old, she started a group called The Child Movement, which has spread around the world and promotes new climate laws and protects the rights of children affected by natural disasters. The Child Movement has made Licypriya one of the most outstanding voices in youth activism. In 2019, the Earth Day Network even named her a Rising Star for her efforts.

“My heart feels sorrow for people who can’t help themselves when disaster strikes,” Licypriya said.
